

KHAN ADDRESSES UN CLUB

by George Schafer

Sir Muhammed Zafrulla Khan addressed last night a gathering of more than 200 respective members of the United Nations Association in Canada and McGill's United Nations Club on the topic "Pakistan and the UN".

Opening the meeting, Mr. C. Jones, President of the Association's Montreal Branch, called upon Miss Beverley Burn to give a report on the three day UN seminar, held at Queens University.

Canadian Justice

In introducing the speaker, Judge J. E. Read, who formerly served as Deputy Undersecretary of State For External Affairs and was re-elected twice to the International Court of Justice, said the following:

"I am glad to be here tonight, for I think there isn't a more important task than the building up of a strong public opinion. I do not know of any instance in the history of the Permanent Court of Justice or our International Court of Justice where a judge had a more admirable background as Zafrulla Khan."

Genesis of Pakistan

His Excellency opened his speech by explaining why the partition between India and Pakistan was necessary. He said that at the time of the division only a quarter of the population was Moslem. The majority of the Hindus being orthodox sided with a rigid cast system while the Moslems believed in universality.

Because the name of a person indicates to which of the two races he belongs, discrimination was common in national life. Unless

Advance Annual Sales To Start Next Week

Sales girls will be placed in every major building on the campus next week when the Annual begins its first sales campaign on Monday. This will give students their first chance to place their orders for Old McGill '55.

Although the Annual will not be published until early in the spring all sales must be made in advance. The price, despite rising costs, has remained unchanged at $5.00; which may be paid by cash or cheque. The latter may be postdated for three months.

Old McGill '55 is already well under way with its large staff busily accumulating the vast quantity of material which goes into the making of a yearbook. Continuing the trend which began last year, the Annual will cover pictorially as many of the minor campus activities as possible, and at this moment there are more than 1000 photographs in this category on file.

Van Dyck's Photographers have already taken one-third of the graduates' pictures in their new studios on St. Catherine Street, while the managing-editor announced earlier in the week that contracts had been signed with the printers, the Gazette Printing Company.

Last year's Annual was considered by many to be the best in several years. Because it is the only complete record of one's college days, the staff of Old McGill '55 will spare no effort to equal or even surpass this record.

Art Exhibit Opens Ukrainian Week

By Lexie Osti

Mr. Bohdan Turczeniuk, President of the Ukrainian Students' Club, set the scene last night for the opening of the Second Annual Art Exhibition which marked the commencement of "Ukrainian Week" at McGill.

President Turczeniuk opened his speech by stating that the paintings of the twelve Ukrainian artists exhibited at the Redpath Museum represented only a sample of the works by these artists.

"These works represent Ukrainian artists who were deemed to leave their native land, which is now occupied by the Soviets, and who, by finding greater freedom here to work and create, have brought forth the fruit of their art."

The President then introduced Dr. Arthur Lismer, who officially opened the exhibition and presented a brief speech to an audience of 70 people.

The exhibit consists of 43 paintings, ranging from conservative to modern conceptions of art. Present at the opening were several of the artists whose paintings are shown, and who were on hand to interpret their own works to the visitors.

The exhibition will last throughout the week and will be open Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, between 10 and 11 am, 12 and 2 pm, and 3 and 5 pm, on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, from 11 to 5, and on Tuesday evening from 6:45 until 8 pm.

PSYCHO-ANALYSIS COURSE TO OPEN

by Hal Trew

Next year McGill will open the first course in Psycho-Analysis in Canada.

Under the direction of the newly appointed Associate Professor W. Clifford Scott and his colleagues in the Department of Psychiatry, the course will give comprehensive training in personal analysis, lectures and seminars, and treatment of patients under supervision.

Partial Course

Students will be selected, for this four year part time course, from those who are taking psychiatric training or who have a diploma in Psychiatry.

This will be the first time that a university has set up facilities for complete analytical training. Previously training was given in institutes, in London, Paris, Amsterdam, and the United States.

Psycho-Analysis is a method of increasing understanding of humans by humans. "Treatment", Dr. Scott said, "helps the patient understand himself and his reaction to others and why he misunderstands others and why he feels they misunderstand him."

Original Interne

Dr. Scott received his medical education at the University of Toronto and was one of the original student internes at the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital when it opened in 1925. He continued his studies in New York, at Johns Hopkins, at Harvard, and went to England, where he was the first Canadian to train at the London Clinic of Psycho-Analysis. Up until last month, Dr. Scott was chairman of the board of directors of the Institute of Psycho-Analysis, which publishes books, gives analytical training and runs the London Clinic.

After the war, Dr. Scott taught part time in the Institute of Psychiatry at the University of London and until last month he was president of the British Psycho-Analytic Society. He has been elected to become president of the Canadian Psycho-Analytic Society in January.

Mental Diseases

For the benefit of non Medical students, Psychiatry is the treatment of mental diseases while Psycho-Analysis is a sub department of Psychiatry. Psycho-Analysis is the Psychology of Freud, Jung and Adler, which divides the mind into conscious and unconscious elements and investigates the interactions of these.

MC GILL P.C. CLUB HEAR EGAN CHAMBERS

Mr. Egan Chambers, Conservative candidate for the Westmount-St. Antoine Riding, was guest speaker at a luncheon held by the McGill Progressive Conservative Club on Wednesday, November 3.

In his address Mr. Chambers stressed the need for young people of intelligence to interest themselves in politics and not consider it "a dirty game". He said:

"Today as never before it is important that our Government should be in the hands of the best men that we can find in the country, because year by year the part that the Government plays in the life of the individual citizen gets greater, and the price we have to pay for mistakes in the field of foreign affairs has now become almost beyond imagination."

The speaker went on to state the claims of the Progressive Conservative party that it is the one main force working to maintain the liberal tradition inherited by Canadians from their European forefathers.

Pointing out that the party has guided Canada's progress for over half of its history, he said that the party was dedicated to the principle of the importance of the individual and warned that under complete Socialism the only thing of importance would be the group. Mr. Chambers in his closing remarks said:

"It is under our democracy that the labourer has been freed from his chains, that the man of humble origin has been enabled through universal education to rise to great heights, that the sick and the aged have become the responsibility of society as a whole, and the freedom of expression and action have become the rule instead of the exception."

He ended saying that the Conservative party was dedicated to the improvement of this system.

NEW THEME FOR PROM

The McGill Prom, the first formal dance of the season, will be held this year on December 3.

The theme has not been announced as yet, but it will be of a more sedate nature than last year's "Go to the Devil" theme. Don Bishop, Publicity Chairman for the Prom, stated that the decorations will be the "greatest and most extensive to be shown at McGill."

Russ Meredith's orchestra will supply music for the dance, which will run from 10 pm to 3 am. Admission will be $3 a couple, a decrease from previous prices, made possible by an S.E.C. grant. Free soft drinks will be served, and dress is strictly formal.

"This is the only formal dance on the McGill campus NOT sponsored by some faculty. It is sponsored by you — through your SEC so be sure you are there."

PLACEMENT SERVICE INTERVIEWS START

Starting this Monday, the annual interviews by prospective employers will be conducted by the Placement Service. Representatives from various companies and agencies—last year's total was 106—come to the University to interview students in their senior year for employment.

Besides the many industrial companies represented, several government agencies—including the National Research Council and the Civil Service Commission—send interviewers to the University. A fair number of companies also interview for summer and part-time jobs, but the main work of this service is to obtain full-time employment for graduating students.

The interviews take place for six weeks before Christmas and continue after the New Year. Selection of applicants is made before the final examinations, so that most of those who get jobs have them early.

A large percentage of graduating students obtain employment this way, particularly those in the applied sciences, with Commerce running a close second. Many students in other faculties are unaware of the benefits of this service, and Mr. C. M. McDougall, director of the Placement Service, urges them as well as other students to keep a close watch on the notice boards of the various University buildings for announcements concerning the interviews, as companies interview only once during the year.

Notices will be posted on the bulletin boards two weeks before the arrival of the companies concerned. Those interested are asked to give their names to the Placement Service at that time and they will be given appointments for their interviews.

REMEMBRANCE DAY

Thursday, 11th November, is not a University holiday, but lectures and laboratory periods on the campus will be cancelled between 10.00 am and 11.00 am to enable staff and students to attend a memorial service to be held at 10.30 am in Redpath Hall.

ON CRITICIZING AMERICANS

The President of the United States and the new Congress are now on opposite sides of the political fence. Canadians tend to feel a bit superior when this happens. It could never happen under our system of government.

At this time, and during the crises of the next two years, Canadians will assure each other of the superiority of our political structure, and of Canadian institutions in general. We will also, no doubt, continue to look at the disturbances that go with desegregation in the Southern States, at the violations of personal liberty by Congressional Committees, and at all the other faults we see in the United States.

In making these criticisms, we will usually have some good points. A system of government that allows this hostility between its Executive and Legislative branches probably creates more problems than it solves. In matters such as race, and personal freedom, some mistakes are inevitable. We ought to remember at the same time though (as we probably won't) that in none of these fields does Canada have a perfect record.

A division between Prime Minister and Parliament is impossible in Canada, but hostility between federal and provincial authorities can be as effective a prevention of decisive action.

In race relations, no real comparison is possible, because we have never experienced racial problems on the same scale. One might, however, compare the courageous decision of the U.S. Supreme Court to end segregation in the schools and the sincere attempts of many Southern states to implement that decision, with the discrimination that still exists in Dresden, Ontario, where the Provincial government declines to enforce their anti-discrimination law.

As for violation of personal rights, it might be pointed out that our government can, by Act of Parliament, deny the citizens of Canada all rights that a Congressional committee can violate, as well as liberties that no American government can ever touch. The only rights protected by our constitution are Provincial rights.

We are proud to be Canadians, but our pride should not blind us to our faults. Before we sail into the defects of the United States, let us remember that we are by no means perfect ourselves.

Letters to the Editor

A Christian Invitation

Dear Sir:

I wish to comment on Mr. Westin's article on Mr. Warner's article. Both men are a bit off the track, but so am I, because we all know the truth simply "in part".

Mr. Westin said that there was no truth outside the Church. The majority of churches do not, I believe, hold this assumption. The minister of a church simply assists the people in their search for the truth. The only reason he is qualified to do this is that he has found an answer in his searching.

It is useless to warn people, Mr. Westin, although I know that you have their interests in mind. Here is my own view: threatening me with a hot-seat in hell if I do not acquiesce will not lead me to become a Christian.

I am a Christian, but not because the Church told me to become one. My experience, tied in with my study in the Church, psychology, and philosophy, led me to become one. Since Christianity had the answer with the highest degree of probability to the great questions and needs of life, I was compelled to accept it.

Instead of further alienating Mr. Warner from Christianity by dogmatic statements and threats, try to understand his viewpoint and present him with a Christian invitation to learn of God.

Doug Blair, Divinity I

An Astounding Claim

Dear Sir,

In his latest article, "God in Writing", Mr. Warner inquires if people might "have any better reasons for being Christians" than merely being born into Christian families.

Since I was converted from agnosticism to Christianity, I can answer in the affirmative: I claim sincerely that knowing Jesus Christ has made the difference between black and white to me.

In the Cross of Christ, I have found forgiveness for all my sins, great and small. In His Resurrection, I have found an assurance of eternal life. In His love, I have found deep peace and joy. In His teachings, I have found an eternal standard to live by. In His Strength, I have found power which is lifting me above my weak self. In His abiding Presence, I have found a Companion, a Guide, a Saviour.

Whether others choose to believe Christian claims, or to reject them, Christians have found that knowing Jesus has made such a difference in their lives that they cannot but offer others . . . an opportunity to have this same miraculous experience. We do not compel or command: we invite others to come and see this Christ for themselves. Therefore, I unhesitatingly recommend Christ to Mr. Warner.

Jesus Christ made a unique and astounding claim: He claims to be the Son of God. Those who would talk of Jesus must remember this fact — He is not just another prophet or religious leader. His claim means one of three things: (1) He was lying, (2) He was insane, (3) He is the Christ. There is abundant proof that only the last possibility can explain the effects of Jesus on humanity. Although we cannot prove that Jesus is the Christ by syllogisms, it is not unreasonable to accept this claim on faith.

Hugh MacDonald, Divinity I

Thanks Anyway

Dear Sir:

. . . I hope it will not be considered out of place to thank all the Commerce students who willingly donated their blood to the Red Cross.

Although we didn't win the competition, we can gain satisfaction in knowing that we weren't embarrassed into action by using the tactics upon which one of the undergraduate societies were dependent.

FROM THE PEWTER MUG

By J. F. MacLeod

"Patriotic Citizen" has started quite a fuss about Kurt Meyer — the ex-General of the SS who was convicted of war crimes and recently released by the Canadian government.

The fuss started over the statement that Kurt Meyer would command the new German Army. This suggestion by our patriotic iconoclast has, as far as we know, no foundation whatsoever. The article in the Gazette to which he refers us is merely the report of an unsubstantiated prediction.

The outraged opponents of "Patriotic Citizen", however, were not content to criticize the accuracy of the statement, or even the suitability of Meyer's hypothetical appointment. "How many Canadians did he murder?" they ask ironically. They suggest that the figure is fairly high.

As a matter of fact, Meyer was never proven guilty of any murder. He was charged, convicted and sentenced to hang for the murders committed by his subordinates, but his sentence was commuted on the grounds that it had not been satisfactorily proven that he had even been aware of the crime.

The Canadian government must have accepted General Vokes' judgment, for nothing was done to alter his decision.

Guilty he may have been, but he was not proven so. That being the case, our government might well be censured — not for releasing him after ten years, but for imprisoning him in the first place.

Utter Tripe!

Dear Sir:

. . . To say that West Germany would be insulted if their Canadian allies paid respect to their war dead is utter tripe.

Germany, throughout the ages, has been an aggressive and warring nation, and because of this abides by the . . . customs of war. Germany respects a brave adversary, but not a cowardly ally. . . Even if they were insulted, should the Canadian people forget the lessons taught by two world wars? Should they once again fondle and cuddle the German nation so that they may be stabbed in the back? . . .

I would like to point out to the "Patriotic Citizen" that the rearming of Western Germany was not done as a friendly gesture but as a necessary evil. Let us look upon it as such. . .

Jack Barnes, Eng. 4

Strange Thinking

Dear Sir:

I cannot understand the thinking of "Patriotic Citizen".

In re-reading his letter, I get the impression that he is intentionally perverting his true opinion, and that he is really saying: "Why, when we lost tens of thousands of men fighting the Germans, do we become allies with them ten years after V.E. Day?"

I am not sure what "Patriotic Citizen's" opinion is. I cannot believe that his letter is sincere. But either way, he has overlooked the meaning of Armistice Day. Armistice Day is not observed in honour of those killed in battle against the Germans. Armistice Day is in memory of those men who gave their lives for their beliefs, their country's beliefs, and for their comrades. . .

NO HURRICANE FOR REDMEN JUST A LARGE GAEL BREWING

by Peter Regenstreif

"The boys have been doing their darndest."

Larry Sullivan was summing up the efforts of our Redmen throughout the season. "It's quite hard to compete against those other guys and besides we need help in a few major spots."

These comments might well summarize this session. Although as Larry continued, "The boys have always been out there to win," it's been strictly no go as evidenced by a big fat zero in the win column.

But getting back to more pressing matters, Sullivan may well pray for rain as far as Saturday's coming encounter with the Gaels is concerned. With that devastating pass attack led by Wally Mellor and Norm Dyson on the throwing end, and Gary Schrider, Ron Stewart and Jake Cook as receivers, it would seem off past performances that the visitors' only hope would be a combination of rain, sleet and snow.

There's also added bad news for our beleaguered crew.

Gary Lewis, the Kingston strong-boy and all-league lineman figures to be at his customary post of center come Saturday and since observers have considered the main weakness of the Gaels to be along the line, Lewis can go a long way towards overcoming this deficiency.

On the credit side of the ledger, however, Clyde Whitman and Lionel Quinn will definitely go for our jobbies. Quinn, who missed the first game of the season against these same Gaels should be rarin' to run the opposition ragged. In fact this seems McGill's only hope — a solid ground attack. For in the last encounter, believe it or not, the Redmen outgained the Tricolor 303 yards to 196 along the ground.

The whole Red team will definitely be up for this one as the boys feel that Queen's was plain lucky in racking up that stupendous score in the last outing. Despite the lack of a coherent air assault, the Redmen, after taking it on the chin (though not lying down) for so long can be the big spoilers in the Intercollegiate picture.

Rugger . . .

McGill's championship (get the smelling salts — somebody just fainted) rugger squad, fresh from a resounding 8-3 triumph over Toronto in a two game, total point playoff for the inter-collegiate title, make their farewell appearance of the year on Saturday. The clash will start at 2:30, and will be played at Westhill High School, weather conditions prevailing. Their opponents identity will remain a secret (at least from the Daily's point of view) until game time. The game should be a corker, and if you can't get tickets to the Alouette tilt, by all means paddle out to Westhill.

INDIANS PREP FOR RMC

The McGill Indians went through their final workout last night in preparation for their game with the RMC Cadets to-night at Molson Stadium. . . . Coach Rocky Robillard reports that his squad is at full strength for the game, with the exception of halfback Bob Shannon, who is out for the rest of the season. . . . Fred Mutsch who has recovered from a serious spinal injury suffered while playing in the Dominion Ping Pong finals last year has completely recovered and is in great shape for the game. . . .

Last year the RMC boys and the Indians fought to a 6-6 draw up at Kingston. . . . Tony Golab, mentor of the Cadets has assembled a strong team. . . . Chick Gardner former West Hill High School star will show with the Cadets. . . . Another outstanding player on their roster is halfback Pete Howe. . . . If the Indians manage to win their game tomorrow night they will finish the season in a first place tie with the Ottawa Colts. . . . The championship will then go to the team with the most points scored. . . . The Indians are currently defending Ottawa St. Lawrence Champs. . . .

Joe Anderson, now coach of the McGill Senior Track Team led the team to their first championship in three years last year. . . . Bernie Wong, who was barred from outside sports by Rocky will line up with the team to-night, but Billy Picard, who was in the same predicament will not be available. . . . Stu Colt has been the team's outstanding ground gainer to date. . . . "Sid the suck" will line with the team again Friday night. . . . He has been voted most valuable waterboy to his team in the league.

Cadavers Unlimited Med Students' Dream

The Federal government is leading to the downfall of the Medical profession in Quebec. The government with its open handed policy of old-age pensions is creating a shortage of cadavers (bodies to you.)

According to a member of the Medical Faculty of McGill: "With the old-age pensions that the government is giving out these days people just don't find it profitable to die anymore. They find that it pays to live and haul in the government cheques each month."

The individuals whom we approached were extremely tight-lipped about this "intriguing" subject, and although hesitant in divulging information, we did manage to get this humorous angle from Profesor Martin:

Two medical students, not of this university, decided to further their education by "borrowing" the head and neck of one such cadaver for weekend study at home. But being young, and therefore forgetful, they left these two important parts of anatomy on the bus — in a bag. Ghoulis headlines resulted until the culprits were rounded up and the mystery explained, much to the relief of the police, we imagine.

Last year's statistics showed that there were four or five students to each cadaver; now there are eight who are forced to wield their scalpels to one body.
